Omaha 8, Minneapolis 6.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 5.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The Minneapolis team batted Elteljerg, the new Omaha pitcher, for three home runs in the first four insings, but after that they fashed out right down the line, only getting one more tally around. The visitors were in fine shape, and put their his well together in the third and sixth iming. They knocked Killen out of the box in the third iming, and made it very pleasant for Mitchell. Later on Minneaudis begant he run getting on Ryn's home run in the first inning, and in the next Miller again lifted the ball out of the lot. In the fourth, with Orasha one ahead, caused by four his, a base on balls, and asacrifice, Carroll was given a life by Cleveland's fumble, and Walsh's bad throw permitted Miller to get the initial bag. Then Dugdale slammed the ballout of the lot. A double, a base or balls, and three singles gave Omaha the lead in the sixth. The locals scored one in the eighth on the visitors' horse play, but Newman dropped into the breach and banged the ball so far it could not be found, giving the game to the Nebraskans. The spleadid stops and throws of Walsh and the steady catching

The Athletics Insolvent. PHILADELITHA, Pa., Sept. 5. - [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—The players of the Athletic baseball club held a meeting at the law offices of Messrs. Wolf & Judge today to take action looking to the recovery of their back salaries. Mr. Whittaker, the treasurer and practical owner of the club, who was present practical owner of the club, who was present by request, gave a statement of the erganiza-tion's standing. He said that it was prac-tically bankrupt; that he had put $0.000 of his own money into it with the tope of fleat-ing it over its troubles, and that the only offer he could make to the players was for them to run the team on the co-operative plan and take the chances of recouping them-selves by the gate receipts. The players will run the club antil something definite is heard un the dub until something definite is heard

BOY KILLED WHILE PLAYING SOLDIER.

Chris Schwanz, Living Near Paxton, Found Dead in Fed-An Important Law Suit at Hastings.

Grand Island, Neb., Sept. 5.—[Special Telegram to The Ber.]—Today virtually closed the reunion. The programme for tomorrow reads: "Good-nye; come again." It was the largest, most interesting and most enthusiastic ever held in Nebraska. Regretfully people turn their faces and all have kind words of thanks for the cordial and magnanimous treatment they have received. The accommodations were unexcelled, and every member of the reunion committee has labored accessantly for the benefit of the visitors. An estimate of the crowd can be made from the statistics of the Union Pacific road, which carried an average of 28,000 daily for the last three days. In addition to this the B. & M. railway has had a very large patronage, street cars have been taxed to their limit and hacks and carriages have done a large business. The feature at the camp today was the sham battle, participated in by the old soldiers of company F. Second United States artillery, commanded by Colonel Carl A. Woodruff, and the Twenty-first United States infantry, commanded by Gen-Morrow, It was a grand eral sight and will be long remembered by all who witnessed it.

ntil tomorrow. This has been a red letter day for the traveling men of Nebraska. The reunion suf-fered a positive eclipse and the boys carried all before them. At II o'clock this morning the festivities were started with a monster parade, over five hundred commercial men parate, over five fundared commorcial men being in line, escorted by mounted police, twelve brass bands and a continual round of applause. A Union Pacific locomotive and freight car came rumbling along the street and blowing its whistle. Altogether this parade was the finest seen in our streets for some time and greatly strengthened the good feeling already existing between our citizens and the traveling men. Following the traveling men came the Grand Island Uniformed Rank Knights of Pythias, presenting a fine appearance. The local fire department brought up the rear of the procession proper, but following was a long line of trades distance.

This evening a grand ball and banquet was given at the Ancient Order of United Workmen hall and was enjoyed by the "Knights of the Grip." Hon. S. N. Wolbach, F. G. Lockwood and others responded

PAXTON, Neb., Sept. 5 .- [Special to THE BEE. |-The body of a farmer named Chris Schwanz has been found in bed dead about twenty miles north of Paxton by a cowboy working on the Bratt ranch. The coroner was notified and a jury summoned. Investi-gation shows that Schwanz had been dead three weeks. He was last seen alive three weeks ago. He seemed to have just arrived home from town, as new goods were found in the wagon. He had un hitched and unharmessed the horses, went to the house, closed the door, laid down in the bed and died. There seemed to have been no strug-gie and no deadly instruments were found, although the pillow, bed and floor indicated that he bled freely before dying. From the decomposition of the body it was impossible to discover marks of violence.

sey of Nebraska City. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 5.—[Special o Tim Ben.]—James H. Mussey, an old soldier, who med near this city about a week ago, was a veteran with a history and a hero with an enviable record. He enlisted in company G. Eighth regiment of Illinois volunteer infantry at Griggsville, Ill., in 1861, and participated in some of the hardest fought battles of the rebellion. He was in the engagement with Grant at Fort Donelson on February 14, 1862, and was shot in the head. The idered serious, but it resulted fatally twen ty-nine years later. He fought at Shiloh and came out without a scratch. In 1863 he was stationed with his regiment on the Missis-sippi, above Vicksburg, and was the first man to offer his life and service in Grant's call for rolunteers to make an attempt to run the rebel blockade and batteries at Vicksburg. It is the record of history that on April 22, 1863, the blockade was successfully run, and although manyothers less their lives that heroic feat, yet Private Massey es-

At the end of his furlough Private Massey rejoined his regiment, and during a march from Vicksburg to Jackson was overcome by the effects of his wound and the heat. by the effects of his wound and the heat. He never recovered, and was soon after sent to his home a physical and almost a mental wreck. The remainder of his life was a struggle to provide for his family and to regain his health. Nature a pentagon of the sent mercus attempts were made to secure a pen-sion for the old hero, but without success. As the wound in his head had healed and he could produce no witnesses, the pension ex-miners refused to believe his story about being shot, and declined to make an examina tion of his head. They based his application for pension on "sunstroke and rheumatism," but he never got a cent.

At the time of his death Dr. Carriker of city was called in and an autopsy was held. The brain of the dead soldier was re moved and an examination in the presence of witnesses disclosed the almost incredubl fact that a bullet was imbedded in the right hemisphere of the brain, about an eighth of an inch from the outside, having been there since the battle of Fort Donelson, on Febru-

Secretary Rusk Talks About the New Meat Inspection Law.

PARTIAL OUTLINING OF THE PLAN.

Representative Burrows of Michigan Giving Satisfaction to Both Sides as Presiding Officer of the House.

WASHINGTON BUREAU THE OMAHA BEE,) 513 FOURTHENTH STREET, WASHINGTON D. C., Sept. 5. Uncle Jere Rusk learned back In his big arm charthis afternoon and tasked of how he would put in operation the meat inspection bill which has recently become a law. "It has not been efficially certified to me as yet," said be. "If Ithad, I would have gone shead, knowing the importance of the matter to ment packers. Within aday or two we will have the details of the meat inspection completel and within ten days the plan of inspecting cattle will also be complete. An official certificate is to be furnished by the department for each shipment and a stamp provided to be attached to the meat. I have not yet decided on the form of the cerdificate orstamp. The certificate will recite the law and then add the guarantee of soundness under the scalef the department. There will be two classes of inspection-one covering all meat which goes to France and Germany, which countries have prohibitory laws against unsound meat, and the other formeats going to England, other countries not having such stringent laws. In case the meat ship-pers wish the inspection extended to this mentgoing to England they will have to designate it, in which case it will receive the same inspection as that going to France and Germany." In response to a question as to applicants for the places of government inspectors to be appointed under the law the secretary said that he had not received a single application yet. He will go slowin picking out the inspectors, as they must have special qualifications for the work. They are paid by the government, but will be stationed at the more important ment packing centers in order to facilitate the inspection. The secretary says that the inspection will not be regarded as a mere commercial convenience for the shuppers, but one in which the government. peived a single application yet. He will or the shippers, but one in which the government is much concerned. Instead of turning over the inspection machinery to the meat packers the department will keep a strong hand on it, and in ease the local inspection the packing houses proves to be in any way unsatisfactory the department will have no ditional inspections made in New York before the meat's actually sent abound the camers. In short, the secretary is not only oing to let the law benefit the meat packers, out he is going to have it so enforced as emonstrate abroad that this country alive to the need of maintaining a good standing for its foodexperts. With such a good government policy the efforts of the American ministers in France and Germany to have the unjust meat restrictions removed will be ably supplemented from this side. Burrows was in the chair when Kennedy of Ohio made his most infamous artack upon the "senatorial courters." tesy" of the senate and upon the chairman of the national republican committee, who is a member of that body. For falling to call him to order Mr. Burrows has been criticised sharply by the eastern press, especially the Pennsylvania republican contingent, but i has been clearly shown by Journal Clerk Smith that the practice and precedents for many years absolve him from blame. The duty of calling a member to order for objectionable utterances devolves upon a fellow-member, not the presiding officer. Besides the prestige which his election as speaker pro tem will give him in future cam-paigns for the speakership itself, Mr. Bur-rows will have the freedom of the floor of the house as long as he lives unless the pres ent rules are changed.

CHEROKEE STRIP CATTLEMEN. It has been understood that the president's decision to let the cattlemen on the Cherokee strip have more time was in order to prevent the possibility of breaking the cattle market in the west this fall. When Secretary Rusk was asked about this he confirmed the report and said the president kept his eyes open in order to avoid disturbances in the commercial world. He had been informed that if the first orders to the cattlemen to quit the Chemke country were carried out it would flood the cattle markets with the poor Cherokee cattle. There has been much drouth in that lecality and a shortage of crops, so that the cattle are in bad condition and cannot possibly begot into good shape for an early fall market. If they were driven out of the country and thrown on the markets their poor condition and the unusual supply would almost certainly disturb the market seriously and probably break it. Secretary Rusk said it was in order to avert such a disturbance of the market that ranchmen have been more time for getting cattle out of the Indian

During the discussion on the tariff bill to-day Senator Manderson spoke in favor of an amendment to the agricultural schedule lim-iting the provisions of the act providing for the importation of animals for breeding purposes to such animals as have a pedigree in the herd books. The senator called attention to the great bought to the meat product of the country by the introduction of first class blood in crossing with the American cattle, and he argued that the farm horses were materially benefitted by the introduction of foreign thorough bred blood among them. of foreign thoroughbred blood among them. The senator turned his attention toward an addition to the free list of art educational stocks used in the schools of this country which are made in Bohemia, and which, it is said, can not be made with any profit in the United States. The art educational stocks are the invention of Mrs. Frances E. Eller of Omaha, and have proved of inestimable value to the kinder artery teachers of the value to the kindergarten teachers of the country in the training of children in the use of colors. These art educators have received a good deal of attention at the hands of the two Nebraska senators for some time past, and they have promised that there shall be an amendment to the bill providing for them. Senator Manderson's next move was in the direction of free lumber. He tried hard to secure an amendment to the lumber schedule providing for the addition of white pine lumber to the free list, but it was opposed by Senator Spooner of Wisconsia, who fought the proposition tooth and nail. When the vote was taken the only republicans who showed their willingness to place lumber on the free list were: Messrs, Manderson, Paddock, Plumb, Ingalis and Washburn. ARMY NEWS.

It is rumored at the war department that the headquarters of the Twenty-firstin-factry and Ninth cavairy will shortly be changed, the Twenty-first infantry removing from Fort Sidney to Fort Robinson and the Ninth cavalry changing to Fort McKinney. This ramor, however, is not well authenticated and it is not yet known whether the serre-tary of war will order the change. General Kautz entered a very vigorous protest against the transfer of the two companies from Fort Niebrara to Fort McKinney. Lieutenant Owens of the Eighth Inrantry, Fort Robinson, is in the city. He came here from Vermont, where he attended the funeral of his mother. He will shortly leave for the west, taking his only sister with him.

ANCIENT RELICS DISCOVERED. Remarkable Specimens Found in the Tomb of Menetaus.

Near Sparta, in Greece, there has been known for many years a large turnulus, believed by the common people to be the tomb of Menelaus, says the Jeweler's Weekly. It has remained intact until recently, when a scientific tomb breaker opened it under the aust pices of the Archaeological Society of Athens. It proved to be of great importance, throwing a strong light on Achainn art, and was evidently the burial place of a royal personage.

Jewelers are chiefly interested in the works of art found in this tomb, now first opened since it was closed years B. C. or nearly two thousand nine hundred years age. From an Athenian correspondent it is learned that the articles found comprise fifty "island stones," some of which are of the most exquisite weekenanship and design, the perforations being bushed with gold but not mounted; several rings of gold and prome, of which one is similar to those the Schliemann find, with an integlio of eastern design, and another that has an eagraved stone set in it; some vases of silver, mounted in gold, of which the silver has almost disappeared by corrosion; implements of bronze of the usual orms, and one of a unique form; swordand knives, some of known forms and some unique; an immense collection of amethyst bends and several rings which must have belonged to women, objects of ivery and a lance of a peculiar form mounted with bone, and what is of the highest archaeological interest, a short sword of the same kindas those found in the Schliemann graves, incrusted with gold, and two golden cups of the same workmanship as the best of those in the Schliemann collection, but ornamented in a style of which nothing of prehisteric work hitherto seen gives an adequate . conception.

The known art of Greece at an epoch subsequent to the Homeric age, to which this tomb belongs, is of the most conventional character. But these cups are ornamented in the most exquisite manner in repousse with companion designs, one of a wild cattle hunt and the other of domesti-cated cattle. In the former the design pirited to a degree unapproached by anything else in Greek art. The cattle are charging and tossing the hunters, and one buil has run into a net of ropes. In the other the cattle are grouped with excellent pictorial effect, and a man is tying one of them by the foot. They are as peaceful as the others are furious. There is nothing Phoenicianor Assyrian in the design, and the men in costume and type are clearly Greek, while the animals are of a treatment sonaturalistic that, if they were put into a modern ex-hibition, it would be considered an absurdity to call them antique, much less pre historie.

These cups are the flower of a school of art of which we know nothing, and which had utterly disappeared from Greece before the advent of the school which came to perfection in the time of Phidias and Praxiteles. The delineation of the human figure is greatly inferior to that of the animals, the latter being such as would do honor to any modern school, while the men are insignificant, and, but for their realism, hardly in keeping with their herds. On looking over the collection of gems found with the cups, one sees enough in common to satisfy him that they belong to the same school of art.

Found a Strange Tribe of Indians. Colonel Holabird, who has been exelering the Grand canon of the Colorado, came across a practically unknown ribe of Indians, the Yavi Supias, says a San Francisco dispatch to the Chicago Tribune. He says they belong to the Apache family and that he was the second white man who ever visited their cason. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood. They numbered just 247in the tribe, two-thirds of whom females. There are but two ways of appreach to the valley in which they live. It is enclosed by perpendicular walls 4,000 feet high. The chief of the tribe is an old man of sixty named Captain Tom, being thus christened by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who for six years was in hiding in the valley. The Yavi Supias evidently descended from the Aztees. They are in a starving condition, living on grass seed and cedar berries.
